Recent grad to receive Nat'l award

Charles Schuttrow, 1963 graduate of St. Joseph's College and former student director of athletic publicity, has won fifth place in national competition with his basketball brochure for the 1962-63 season. The results were published in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletic News for the summer of 1963.

The brochure was entered in competition sponsored by the NAIA. More than 250 brochures were entered in the two categories for printed and reproduced brochures. The St. Joe brochure was entered in the reproduced category.

The basic purpose of the brochure is to inform sports writers about the college and its athletic programs. In it are school records, biographical sketches of the players and athletic staff, and statistical information on opponents.

According to Mr. Menkhous, publicity director at St. Joe's, Schuttrow did a considerable amount of research to compile

President's meeting held Thursday, campus clubs to revise constitutions

Among the items discussed at the Interclub president's meeting last Thursday night was the revised constitution and charter form required of all campus organizations.

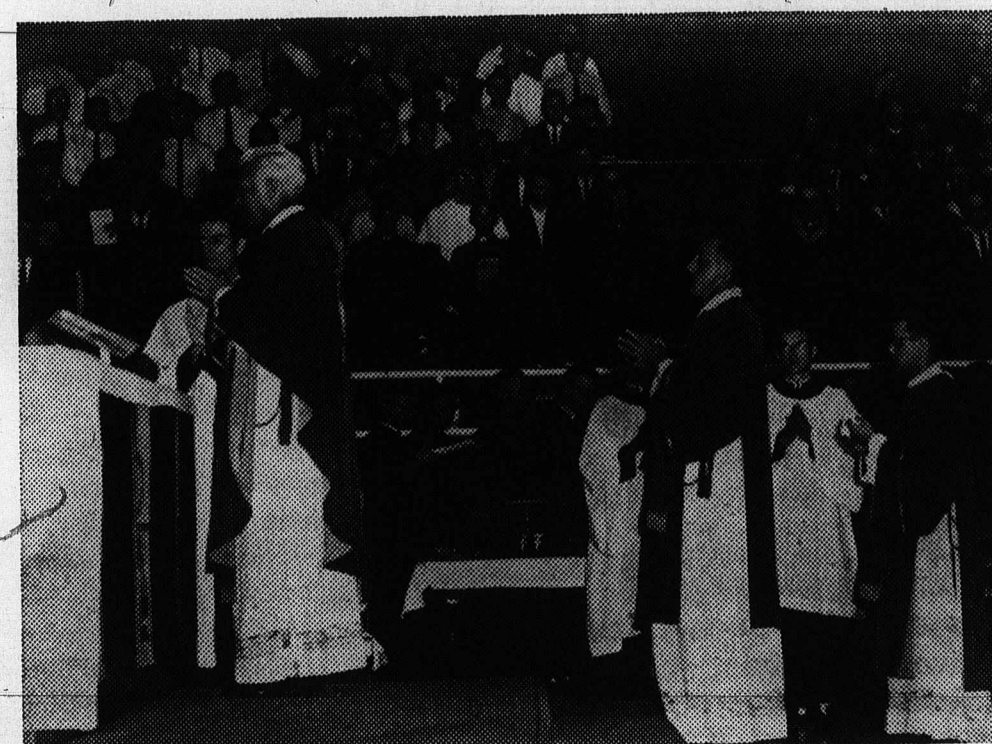

All clubs must revise their constitutions in accordance with the new form and have them approved by the student council by Oct. 7. Also discussed was joint sponsorship by the smaller clubs of social functions that they couldn't afford singly.

Pat Murphy, president of the student council, urged more cooperation between clubs. He also asked the clubs to use the inter-

Words of William Saroyan compared to student's life

"In the time of your life, live—so that in that good time there shall be no ugliness or death for yourself or for any life your life touches. Seek goodness everywhere, and when it is found, bring it out of its hiding place and let it be free and unshamed. Place in matter and in flesh the least of values, for these are the things that hold death and must pass away. Discover in all things that which shines and is beyond corruption. Encourage virtue in whatever heart it may have been driven into secrecy and sorrow by the shame and terror of the world. Ignore the obvious, for it is unworthy of the clear eye and the kindly heart. Be the inferior of no man, nor of any man be the superior. Remember that every man is a variation of yourself. No man's guilt is not yours, nor is any man's innocence a thing apart. Despise evil and ungodliness, but not men of ungodliness or evil. These, understand. Have no shame in being kindly or gentle, but if the time comes in the time of your life to kill, kill and have no regret. In the time of your life, live—so that in that wondrous time you shall not add to the misery and sorrow of the world, but shall smile to the infinite delight and mystery of it"

We do not need an intellectual mastodon to draw a parallel between Saroyan's masterful piece of prose and our own lives here at Saint Joseph's. Our present lives, through whatever lens we choose to view them are, undisputably, the time of our lives.

As freshmen—and God love them, for without their fire, hopefulness and downright confusion the rest of our lives would be that much more tedious—as freshmen we take to the campus and the dorms full of curiosity. No thing is an old everyday thing. We find new rules, new people and an abundance of "I've heard the name once" courses being taught with all the newness and shine that a competent college professor can rub into Aristotle, or Bacon, or Raphael. But, unfortunately, in the rush of our new world we fail to grasp so much. With rallies and basketball try-outs and club meetings and an array of such good things, we are easily led by our big brothers and leave in June with the resolution to return not starry-eyed, but confirmed to grasp those further horizons.

And as sophomores—and God must love them for their swagger and self assuredness, without which so many frosh would go through the year unchecked, unnoticed and, no doubt, sadder and lonelier—we return to find the classrooms still waiting. But now we become acquainted with the "slump" and again we miss so many worthwhile things. The year is slower than last and unconstructive complaining finds its way into our daily activities.

And as juniors—and God loves them for their patience and determination in anything they do—we return to find the old school and the old classrooms still open. But now we are too busy with the final push to really absorb. It is now a question of what classes we need and what professor is the easiest. It becomes hard to see the great wealth of knowledge at hand for all the books on the desk.

And as seniors—and God certainly must love them for their caution and their attitude of uncertainty toward the world they are soon to enter—as seniors we become involved in credit hours, cramming for comps, and graduate school exams. It is, perhaps, at this point that we just once turn back and try to perceive that lost something.

The best advice we can give to freshmen at this point is this: "We are not transients. Slow down and take the knowledge in, for this is truly the time of our lives."

You will find the life here trying and perplexing and often completely discouraging. You will not agree with all the rules and regulations and may feel incased within walls of do's and don't's. Never let a physical restriction bind your mind. This is the time for new ideas. Take all you can from your books and then let the new thoughts and discussions run wild.

This is; no matter freshman, sophomore, junior or senior; the time of your life. Live it.

Pumaville Fever

House of Halleck, Greyhound Room?

By JOHN REAGER

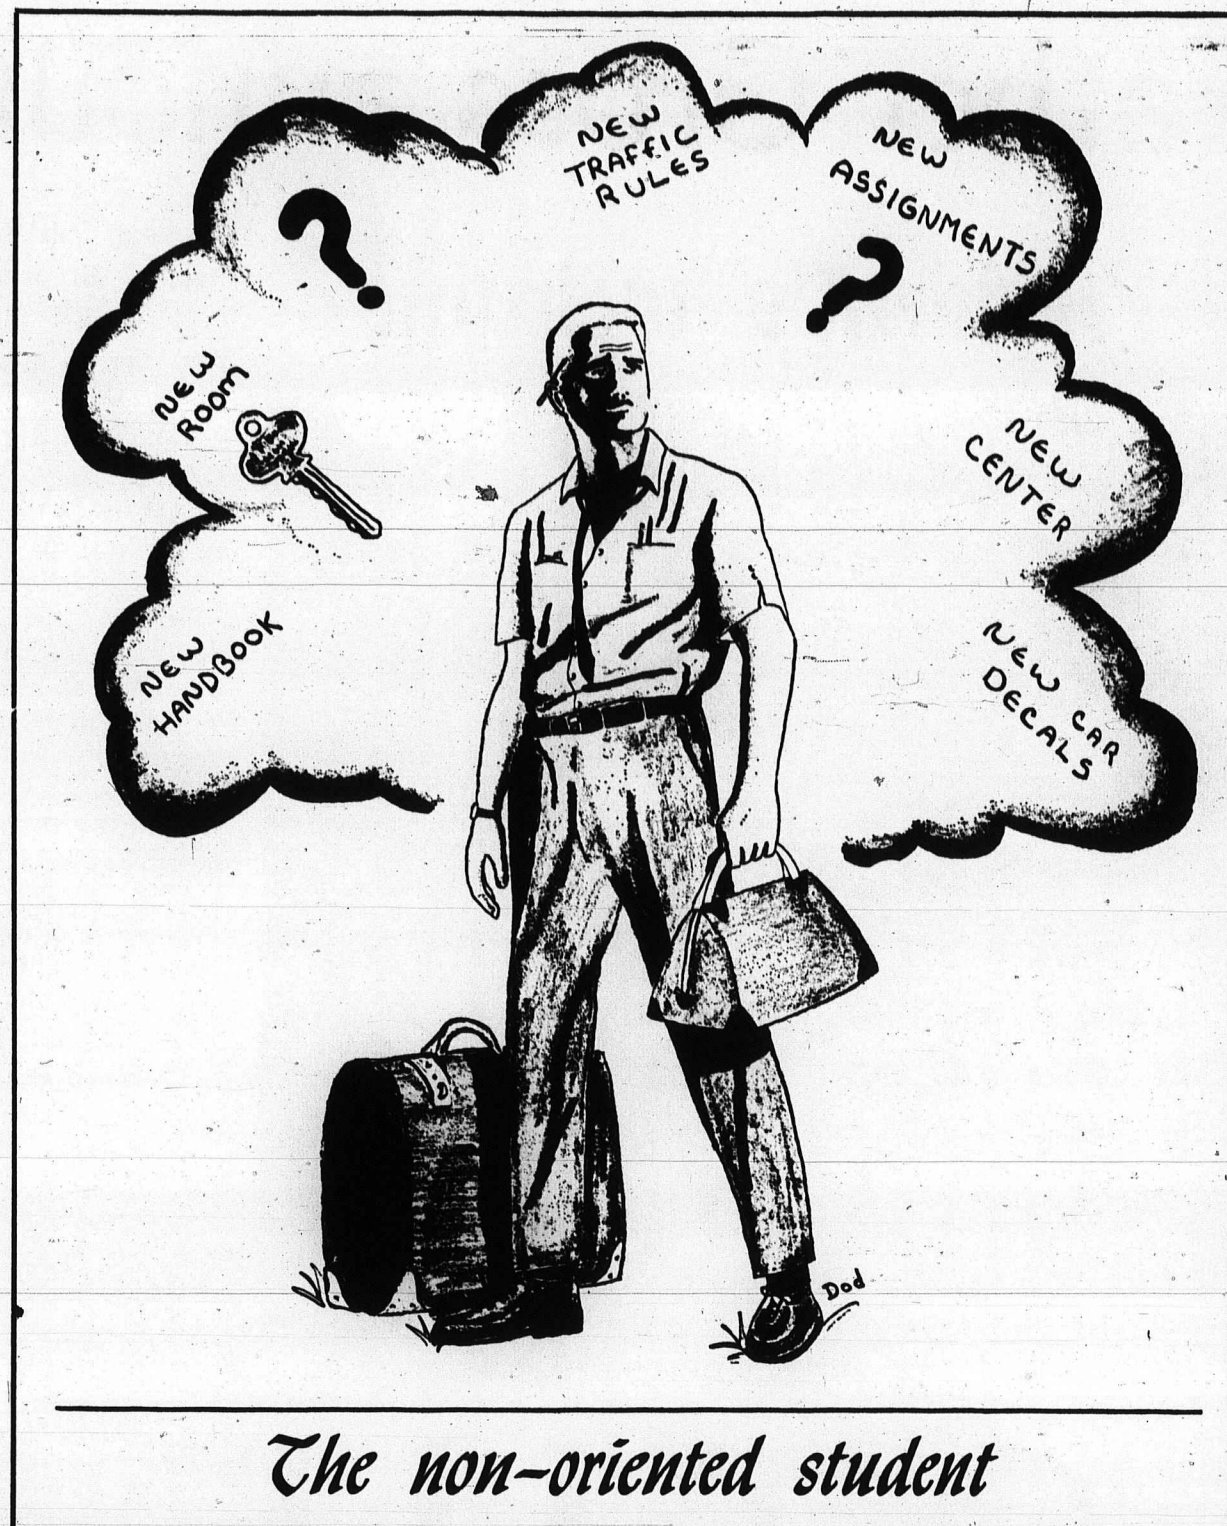

Happy days are here again and in the clear Indiana heavens two spires raise their lofty brows, symbolic of the Christian tradition of Catholic education. Gradually a small cloud appears, the heavens part and amid a flash of lightning and a clap of thunder the cry goes forth, "Where in the hell is my room?"

Many changes have manifested themselves during the past three months in which the fertile green lawns of Pumaville have lain virgin of the clod hoppers of the happy Pumas. Even the traditional chuck holes of our campus expressways have been smoothed over, but unfortunately it is proportionately grave to use the routes. A new floor is found in the field house upon which no one is permitted to tread. It will be interesting to see the basketball team on pogo sticks.

The House of Halleck in which the Greyhound waiting room of Collegeville is found is sporting the administration's answer to automation—ten beady-eyed, open mouthed, gold lined, Shylock-type mechanical monsters line the western section observing the unaware suckers who venture into this Venus-type fly trap. Unfortunately the billiard tables were a slight error. The holes for the coins were made to fit one dollar gold pieces. Tragically, a few years ago the United States began issuing silver currency solely. Industrious Pumas have discovered that a dime works equally well, hence the closest thing to perpetual motion is in evidence.

To quote a reputable source (unit 1), there is absolutely no truth to the rumor that the rec-hall has been sublet on weekends for use as a roller rink.

Poor Brother Gerard, who incidently still has his managerial fingers in the pie, was seen strolling somberly from the Raleigh activities center. He seemed to be remembering the glorious days of a by-gone era when he could shut off our water.

St. Joseph's may soon be known as a five year college should our super seniors increase their ranks to any greater extent. It warms one's heart to see a certain percentage of Pumas who refuse to leave our hallowed halls. I guess they just can't adjust themselves to the outside world.

The on again, off again ex-disciplinary board member, Dan (almost V.P.) O'Shea is moving to the third floor of the center. He will room with a certain dean.

Poor Louis Guagenti has found that fate can't be cheated. At a surprise (to himself at least) wedding this summer, his girl led the procession out of church. Word has it that "Louis the Lover" wasn't even invited to the memorable occasion.

During the recent pep rally it was a relief to see that "Jolten' Jack Halpin" had given up his job as a field representative for the living bra. It certainly cuts down on those embarrassing letters of apology, doesn't it Jack.

Dave Ogren almost inaugurated the penalty list by trying to cheat the pool tables. A student of Sherlock Holmes perceived this unspeakable act from afar and after sending "Dapper Dave" diving, managed to put all the balls in their correct pockets.

Chief Puma, Pat Murphy missed most of the weekend due to a small stretch in the Health center. All was saved Sunday, however, when Frank Harmon put on his own little show beneath Pat's window. Even Shakespeare would have been proud of the little portrait of Romeo and Juliet. Although Frank may have made the pilgrimage just to listen to his master's voice (hoarse), the plot of land seemed quite popular for a few "Mundle Bundles" who ventured by. They too had a glimpse of the president. All in all the scene would have made Mr. Kennedy jealous.

A new breed has come to town and can be found in Kannes along with a few of the old. Even Dick Herb is using his own draft card—at last.

Perhaps next year the upperclassmen can come to school a few days early to be orientated. It seemed strange to hear seniors asking the freshmen for directions.

For those few who may have wondered where Dick Biandi has gone, may I suggest looking in Peru, Ind. Only the wild Italian could have announced Saturday's game with such incompetence. Good Lord!

Scholastic committee publishes bulletin

It is hoped that by now most of the students are more than casually acquainted with at least four issues of the recently born publication on campus, the Scholastic committee bulletin.

Five of these one page bulletins will be distributed to every student each week. Intended to stimulate discussion and a flow of ideas, it will contain quotes from noted authors in various fields.

James Muth, a junior English major, as a member of the scholastic committee of the student council will edit the bulletin. He will be assisted by a senior, Robert Blackwood, also an English major and chairman of the scholastic committee.

Both have acquired a backlog of quotes during the summer months with the help of Mr. Hugh Rank, assistant professor of English and the Rev. Donald Ballman, academic dean. Father Ballman has arranged for the printing of the bulletin through his office facilities.

The bulletin is financed by the student council and will be free to all students.

Mistakes and penalties trip up SJ Puma gridgers in 22-6 opener

By GENE HAMILTON

Last Saturday night I went to a football game. St. Joseph's College played Indiana State College of Pennsylvania. They lost. St. Joe's made mistakes, Indiana State did not.

It was an even game: St. Joe led in first downs and both teams were even in yards gained, but the Indians played inspired, aggressive ball to come out on top of a 22-6 score. Scoring in all four quarters, Indiana capitalized on short punts and bad centers while the Pumas were plagued with penalties in the opening game of the season for both teams.

Indiana State tallied on a field goal in the first period, capitalized on bad centers in the second and third quarters, and a 44 yard pass play in the final stanza to completely overwhelm St. Joseph's, who were unable to score until late in the final period when Denny Anderson climaxed a sixty-one yard drive by skirting left end for two yards and a touchdown.

Anderson, playing one of his best games, gained 52 yards in sixteen carries, while completing eight of the 13 passes he attempted for 68 yards. Fine running by Charles Ryan, Larry Lennon, Denny Berner, Ron Dostal, Larry Yost and Tom Conrad, along with the pass catching of Terry Isselhard, Huck Quigley, Dostal and John George rolled up 206 total yards to IS's 207, but penalties and mistakes spelled defeat in this game.

Indiana won the toss and elected to receive, but nothing happened until midway through the first quarter following two exchanges of punts. Indiana took over on their own 43, and marched down to the eleven before the Puma defense tightened and made the Indians settle for a field goal.

Late in the first period Indiana got the first big break of the ball game. A Puma drive was stalled on St. Joe's own 23, and when Whalen dropped back to punt the center sailed over his head and into the end zone, and he could only return it to the ten, where Indiana State took over. Two plays later they had a TD, and the extra point made the score 10-0 with thirty seconds gone in the second period.

Late in this period St. Joe's began to move, and got the ball down to the IS 24 yard line, but an attempted field goal missed as time ran out in the half.

St. Joseph's received the second half kickoff and Lennon returned the ball 15 yards to the 31. Anderson went for 13 and Ryan for one when an off-sides penalty on Indiana put the ball on the fifty yard line for the Pumas, second down and four. Anderson went up the middle for three and Ryan followed for four. Anderson went for two more, then hit John George with a 13 yard pass to the 28. Then disaster struck. Lennon went for six yards to the 22, but a holding penalty put the ball back to the 44. Anderson went for one, and after an incomplete pass, hit Ryan for six more, but a fumbled center on fourth down gave the ball to Indiana State on their own thirty-eight.

After runs of three and ten yards, the Indians took to the air for a 19 yard pass to the Puma 30. Two more runs brought the ball to the 17, (Continued on Page Four)

Intramural Scoreboard

I-M program cited as important part of non-varsity activities

By BILL SLYKAS

Intramural activities on the college level are a lot more important than the majority of people realize. Intramurals are designed to provide a full scaled field of athletic and recreational activities for the non-varsity athlete to participate in. In other words, not every man who attends college is able to be a member of the varsity athletic teams, but every student may participate in the intramural program.

Here at St. Joe we have an excellent program which provides a selection of twenty-two fields of participation for the student to choose from. This program includes team as well as individual activities.

The men of St. Joe take intramurals seriously and play them as though they were playing in a varsity contest. As the upperclassmen can attest to we have had some thrilling, if not spectacular, contests in the past two years. In the championship games of intramural football we have had such things happen as a double overtime in 1961 and a disputed champion in 1962. Even last years championship basketball game was decided in the final seconds by an offensive foul. These are only a few examples of the seriousness and competitive desire of the men who participate in intramurals at St. Joe.

Contrary to popular belief, the seniors do not dominate the championships in intramurals. Last year two underdog sophomore teams, one in basketball and one in football, upset heavily favored senior teams to take the championships in each sport. And it is not considered odd to see a freshman team be a power in intramurals.

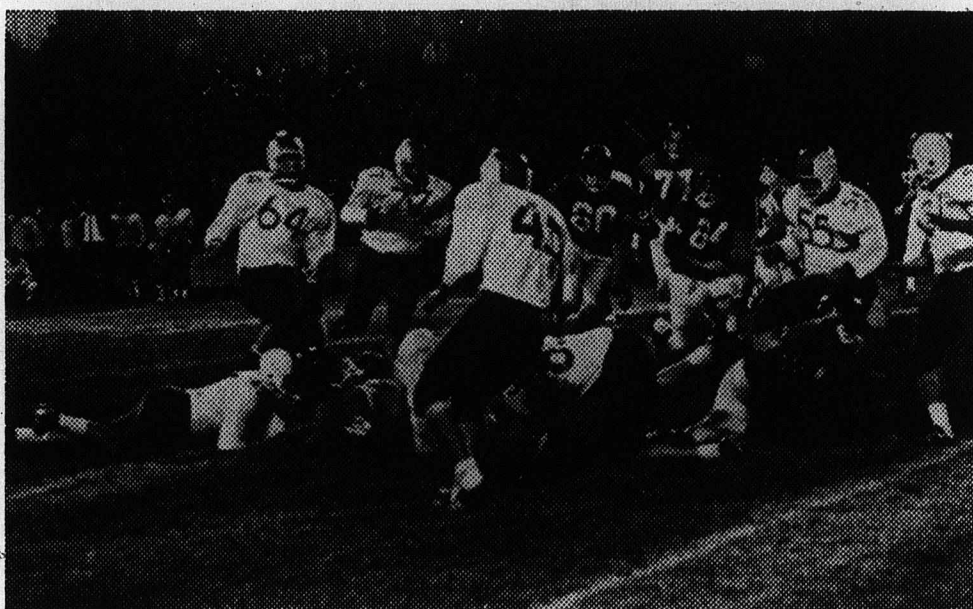

We are looking forward to seeing a large turnout this year and we are positive that the Intramural Department will provide a well organized and interesting program of activities for the entire student body.

Entries are now being accepted in the intramural office for tug of war, football and tennis (singles and doubles). The entries for football and tennis are to be turned in no later than Wednesday, September 18, and the entries for the tug of war contest are to be turned in no later than Tuesday, September 17. The starting date for football and tennis will be Monday, September 23. All captains will receive schedules and rules for football and tennis on Friday.

Coach Merki, Intramural Director, has provided a handbook explaining the program in detail. If anyone has not yet received a copy of this handbook they may do so by asking for one at the Intramural Office.

This column will appear weekly in Stuff to give the student body a clear, up to date account of all activities in the intramural program. If there are any questions concerning the program they will be readily answered upon request by the Intramural Staff (Coach Merki, Chuck Clemens, Paul Corsaro and Bill Slykas.)

Center manager answers student queries

By DAVE BARTHOLOMY

In an interview with Mr. David Norwood, building manager of the Halleck student center, answers to several questions drawn from student opinion concerning the furnishing and operation of the new center were obtained.

Mr. Norwood, twenty-four year old husband and father of a twenty-one month old son, is a 1959 graduate of the school of institutional management of Purdue University. Following graduation he spent three years in the employ of the John R. Thompson Co., a restaurant chain which operates out of Chicago. In June of this year he began in his new position here at St. Joseph's which was recommended to him by the Purdue placement bureau.

Originally a resident of Lafayette, Ind., he now makes his home in Rensselaer.

When asked why machines are being used in the new rec-room rather than student employees, Mr. Norwood replied that "it was the decision of the business office. Under the old system the rec hall couldn't break even."

Concerning any further furnishings in the rec room, Mr. Norwood stated that, as far as the business office is concerned at present, the room is complete with the exception of a small counter to appear this week which will feature hamburgers, grilled cheese sandwiches, french fries, and shakes.

By further pursuing this question it was learned from Father Girt that he expects the room to be tiled and the booths from Raleigh hall to be recovered and moved in prior to Homecoming weekend. But, both Father Girt and Mr. Norwood stated that these additions must first be asked for by the student body via the student council. The request will then be presented to Father Girt, who will hand it over to the student life committee, who in turn will present it to the business office, who will have the final say on the question.

Mr. Norwood added that, although he is in charge of the operation and upkeep of the building in general, Brother Gerard will handle the operation of the rec room.

Moving up to the next floor, the cafeteria, Mr. Norwood provided the following reasons for the comparative slowness of the serving line and the difficulties being experienced in the dish room. He believes that once the students and the new kitchen help become accustomed to the new set-up the line should move as well as the one the upperclassmen were used to in the old cafeteria.

In regard to the dish room difficulties Mr. Norwood stated that he is planning to enlarge and rearrange the room since it is not functional in its present state.

The dining room itself, which presently seats 300 with the furniture from the old cafeteria, is being equipped with new chairs and tables to provide a seating capacity of 650.

In reference to the ballroom floor Mr. Norwood said that bids are out for lounge furniture to be placed in and around the ballroom. In addition, he stated that the occupants of the various offices in the building will provide their own furnishings.

When asked his opinion of his job and of the building Mr. Norwood stated that, despite the many headaches he is experiencing at present, he is happy with his position mainly because of the close association it provides with both the administration and the student body. He added that "once everything is furnished the building will be very functional and will serve its purpose well."

from where the Indiana quarterback, after a beautiful fake, skirted right end to the touch-down. The extra point was missed and the score stood Indiana St. 16, St. Joseph's 0.

Ryan received the kickoff on the five and returned it 23 yards to the 28. Lennon went for three and Berner for eight, then Anderson hit George for eleven yards and a first down on the 50. Anderson went for six in two carries for five, but then Anderson was thrown for a five yard loss to the 44 by a reddogging Indiana line-backer.

Following an exchange of punts, St. Joseph's took over on their own 39. Yost ran for thirteen, and then hit for fourteen and a firstdown on the 34. An off-sides penalty put the Pumas back to the 39, but Dave Ogren ran for seven making it fourth and eight on the 32.

Yost hit Berner for a ten yard pass, and when the Indiana State coach ran out on the field to protest something he was slapped with a personal foul, moving the ball to the 11. Dostal went for two, and Anderson for seven to the two yard line, from where Anderson took it over for the lone Puma tally.
